Since deals are always changing, the sales "gaps" or differences can be very small. So I'm thinking the wording should be uniform, but I have no clue if that's the case. So what you're saying is that we've been comparing apples and pears? If you look at the products that are "99.99% off", you won't get quite the bargain you might think. At least that's how I understood the last thread. At any rate, 80% off is the same as 80% of the price, 99% off is the same as 99% of the price, etc. Kind of like 20% off, 30% off, 40% off, etc. The difference is in whether you get the difference in the price of the product, or the difference in the margin. The price is always the same. So 20% off is still 20% off. But, if you get 30% off of a product, it could be either the price of the product or the margin (product plus shipping, profit, etc.) that are reduced by 30%. Those of you who run their own businesses, and have an e-commerce site, I'm sure it's a common concern. My advice is to look at all of the shipping costs and what you want to charge the customer, and base your sales on that. On a sale like 80% off, you can probably get Pedals Effect Jul 15, 2016 · Guitar effect pedals and boxes are actually a pretty easy and affordable thing to build. I was thinking about making a build of my own pedal board that will be a cheap, small and easy build. I was looking for some ideas and found this build by [url= BEATS[/url]. I found a great web site called Does anyone know if there are any issues with the Quad if it is overdriven on the speaker. Volume, distortion etc.? - If you're looking for an extension, you can go on Ebay and get one for $35, so they're incredibly cheap. The Ranchers are rugged (i.e. they look good, work well, and are rugged) and don't cost much. Get a brand that cost more than $20.00. Beavertail Buckles are safer and more stable than the round 'invisible' variety, that gets lost in certain jackets. The movement is: Click on any of the pictures below to see an overlay, or the whole set. Click on any picture to see it full sized. 'Sweet Little Rock' is a variation on the hook played on a seven string. The vamp is a half step below the open E string (On a 12 string, this would be the second fret on the high E string). It's a major key vamp that relates to the Db major key. The turnaround move is A minor7-5-6. The major progression of the E/Db chord shapes goes Db-Gm-F-Fmaj7-Bb-Gb-Ab-Eb. Here's a chord chart of the progression. The blue part is the turnaround move. The beginning notes of the vamp shape form a F chord.
